Latest Guard COVID-19 update: More than 28,400 troops mobilized

The number of Guard troops mobilized in the effort to cope with the corona-virus pandemic is continuing to grow. There are now more than 28,400 Air and Army National Guard professionals are supporting the COVID-19 crisis response at the direction of their governors. In addition, 21 states, two territories and the District of Columbia have now been approved for use of federal funds for state missions under Title 32, with another 20 requests moving through the approval process.

Those troops are supporting testing sites, enhancing the medical capacity, or delivering critically needed medical supplies and food are likely to be guardsmen and women, he said.

“We expect that number to increase over the coming days and weeks to come. It’s also important to acknowledge that our Guard soldiers and airmen who continue to work as doctors and nurses and first responders in their communities, they too are serving on the front lines of this response only they are still in their civilian capacity and their civilian uniforms.”

Current National Guard COVID-19 response missions include, but are not limited to:

Full time 24 hour state Emergency Operations Center staffing to synchronize National Guard efforts with local and state mission partners to plan and execute an effective response;

Working with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to increase medical capacity;

Supporting warehouse operations and logistics efforts to help deliver critical supplies;

Delivering food in hard-hit communities;

Manning call centers to be a knowledgeable and calming voice.

Providing critical Personal Protective Equipment training and delivery to civilian first responders;

Performing sample collection and delivery to medical personnel;

Providing support and symptoms screening to testing facilities and passenger terminals;

Providing transportation and assessment support to healthcare providers.

Small Business Spotlight Post Rock Beef

Justin Ringler is a former Marine who now makes his living raising top quality beef cattle in North Central Kansas. Cattle raised on his ranch are processed locally and cuts are distributed throughout the lower 48.

Justin sells dry aged beef not seen in your local grocery store. Tender juicy steaks like generations before him produced.

“The flavor of his hamburger is World’s better than what you get in the grocery store.” John Madsen
